

Soay Minimus

Purpose

Soay is a slightly more challenging minimus method.

Third place bell rings a half hunt pattern.

The front work is different either side of the treble which may be a new skill.

Treble signposts are helpful and easy to spot.

Ringing Soay Minimus

Treble plain hunts.

Fourth place bell rings a half hunt, only coming down as far as seconds place. At the back, lie and dodge each time.

Passing the treble at the back is a signpost to lie.

Second and third place bells:

When the treble takes you off the lead, make seconds and lead again, making four blows in lead.

At the back, dodge and lie each time. This dodge will always be with the half hunt bell (third place bell).

After lying, the treble turns you from the back.

Jargon

Half hunt is a bell which does repeated work, which, like a hunt bell, is separate from the working bells. In touches of Grandsire Doubles, one bell is often referred to as the half hunt bell.

Lie or lying means ringing in last place for more than one blow.
